Annapolis, January 22, 1829.

The Hon'ble, John G. Chapman, Esq.

Speaker of the House of Delegates.

Sir—I have the honor of transmitting to you a copy of my annual report, together with two statements, as the late agent for the western hore of Maryland.

With antimotic of esterm.

With sentiments of esteem, I remain your obedient servant, SINGLETON DU VAL.

To the Honourable the Legislature of Maryland.

The late Agent for the western shore respectfully submits

The late Age at for the western shore respectfully submits the following report:

Economy leing the order of the day, and bravity in report the beauty of the system, the agent for the western shore has lattle more to say, then that in pursuance of the several acts of assembly touching his duties, he devoted nearly the whole of the last year to the dicharge thereof. Experience convinced him of the propriety of often appearing amongst those whom it became his duty to visit, and twith many honourable exceptions,) he had to encounter much of that morose and listless disposition in men which the great strate of the times seemed to have the latter fitted.

them. He however present, as far, as in the nature of things was practicable, the settlement of all balances and sums of money due the state anterior and subsequent to his appointment. It is with satisfaction he can say, that the current revenue over which he had more immediate supervision, (which forms no unimportant part,) little or no part of it remains unpaid, by reason of his certain and regular adjustment of the received.

separate and aggregate amounts payable by them. No. 2, in like manner shows the names, items of revenue, and amounts payable by the sheriffs. It will be apparent that there has been an increase of the revenue from these sources within the last year of more than sixteen thousand dollars; and should the legislature in their wisdom, permit the system to remain undisturbed, as it now is, there can be no question of a still larger increase during the current year, ending November 1st, 1829. The chief sources of complaint, and causes of the fluctuation of the revenue derived from the above expedients, are attributable, more to the frequent changes, than the character of the system itself.

All which is respectfully submitted.
